35 Defense Plants Face Early Shortage of Coal

BRITISH WITHDRAWING IN GREECE

Steel Production Capacity May Be Cut Next Week if Miners Stay Out

Reduction to 60 Per Cent within Two Weeks Indicated; Some Mines May Reopen Monday

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP)—The Defense Mediation Board panel considering the dispute which has stopped more than eighty per cent of the nation's soft coal production recessed its first session at 10:40 p. m. (EST) tonight without any indication of an approaching settlement.

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP)—Sharply curtailed steel production, and interrupted operations in at least thirty-five defense plants were in prospect tonight as a result of the stoppage of work in the soft coal mines.

It was officially announced that the steel industry, now operating at ninety-five per cent of capacity, would have to be reduced to eighty-five per cent next week, and to sixty per cent the following week, for lack of fuel.

Nineteen plants informed the war department that they had a two-day supply left, it was said in informed quarters, and sixteen more reported a four-day supply on hand.

Meanwhile the Defense Mediation Board kept representatives of mine owners and the United Mine workers (CIO) in session into the night in an effort to effect an agreement returning 400,000 idle miners to the collieries.

Hope to Reopen Some Mines
Officials indicated they held hope that at least some of the mines might reopen Monday.

Steel men said, however, that an immediate resumption of coal mining would not avert a period of reduced steel production. It takes time, they commented, to get coke ovens refired and supplies for steel-making replenished.

One estimate was that it would require three weeks or more, even after coke was available, for blast furnaces already shut down to return to capacity production.

Defense board mediators, meeting alternately with union and producer representatives, discussed, it was understood, President Roosevelt's proposal that the south reopen its mines, negotiate with the UMW, and make the ultimate contract retroactive to the date of resuming production.

Opposed to Negotiating
The southern producers indicated they were opposed to negotiating on a retroactive basis on the grounds that it would impose upon them the prospect of increased production costs which would not be definitely calculated in advance nor made a part of sales contracts.

They also asserted that they could not agree to the union's proposal to wipe out southern wage differential by boosting wage rates there from $5.60 to $7 a day.

Northern producers have initiated a contract calling for an increase from $6 to $7 a day in their section contingent, it is understood, upon acceptance of the same pay rate by the south. The southern producers have offered an increase of sixty cents a day.

Pay Raises Granted
Martin, president of the company bearing his name, in discussing wages and working conditions of the strikers, said their personnel records showed, that in practically all cases the strikers have been granted, within the last several months, pay raises greater than the ten-cent increase they now demand.

Raises are given to the men at the rate of 1,000 a week, Martin added.

Plane production, plant officials said, was not affected by the walk-out.

The company has a backlog of orders amounting to more than $350,000,000 for the production of planes for the United States army and navy and the British air forces.

Hitler's Early Victories Will Avail Him Nothing, Halifax Says

ATLANTA, Ga., April 25 (AP)—Although "Hitler has given his people a long run of victories," Lord Halifax, the British ambassador, said tonight, "without that final victory against the British commonwealth, all else will avail him nothing."

He added that Hitler therefore was straining every nerve "to cut the jugular vein of British resistance which is represented by merchant shipping; he will stop at nothing to achieve his purpose, and there is no doubt that this is at the present moment one of the principal, if not the greatest danger point."

"But there is no reason to think that, if you can help us quickly enough, we shall not be able to checkmate his efforts," Lord Halifax said in a speech prepared for the Atlantic Bar Association and broadcast over a nation-wide CBS hookup.

Night Shift Reports for Work Through Thin Picket Line

BALTIMORE, April 25 (AP)—A thin picket line of some twenty-five sign-bearing strikers at the Glenn L. Martin aircraft plant was disregarded today by the night shift.

The strike was called last night at a meeting of shop stewards and committeemen of the aviation division of the United Automobile Workers of America (CIO).

27 Workers in Strike Group
Twenty-seven workers were in the original group that walked out Wednesday night after their demands for a ten-cent an hour wage increase was refused. Two have since asked to be allowed to return to their jobs, plant officials said.

Maryland State CIO Director Frank J. Bender asserted the management refused to meet with a grievance committee and that some of the men were "forcibly ejected" when they declined to return to work.

"The union will picket the plant and call out workers until we close it down," Bender asserted.

Pay Raises Granted
Martin, president of the company bearing his name, in discussing wages and working conditions of the strikers, said their personnel records showed, that in practically all cases the strikers have been granted, within the last several months, pay raises greater than the ten-cent increase they now demand.

Lindbergh Dumb In War Views, Roosevelt Says

President Scores Colonel and Other Opponents of British Aid

By RICHARD L. TURNER

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP)—Asserting it was dumb to consider a Nazi victory inevitable, President Roosevelt today classified Col. Charles A. Lindbergh with appeasers who urged peace during the Revolutionary and Civil wars on the ground that those wars could not be won.

He spoke at a press conference in a discussion developing from a request for an amplification of a previous statement that the people were inadequately aware of the gravity of the situation. Lindbergh's name was brought into it when a reporter asked why, although he holds a commission in the army reserve, the flier had not been summoned up for service.

Lindbergh's Position

On Wednesday night Lindbergh made a speech in New York in which he said the "United States cannot win this war for England, regardless of how much assistance we extend." He has repeatedly asserted that Germany was almost certain to win, and has vigorously criticized American foreign policy.

In answer to the question, why Lindbergh had not been called to the colors, Mr. Roosevelt said that during the Civil war, numerous foreigners, liberty loving people, fought on both sides, and that at the same time, both sides led certain people go—that is, did not call them into service.

The people who were thus ignored, he added, were the Vallandighams. The name apparently meant little to the correspondents, and the president explained that the Vallandighams were people who, from 1863 on, urged immediate peace, arguing that the north could not win the war between the states.

(Clement L. Vallandigham was a member of the House from Ohio. In 1863 he was arrested by military authorities for alleged "treasonable utterances" and banished to the Confederate states. He was known as a leader of the "Copperheads.")

Valley Forge, Appeasers
The president said, too, that there were many appeasers at Valley Forge trying to persuade George Washington to quit and arguing that the British could not be defeated. He urged that the newsmen read what Thomas Paine wrote at that time on the subject of quitting.

"Are you still talking about Colonel Lindbergh?" a reporter asked. A simple and emphatic affirmative was the answer.

Dwarfs Grow Up And Old Improve With New Hormone

American College of Physicians Reports of Experiments

By FRANK E. CAREY

BOSTON, April 25 (AP)—Dwarfs have been made to grow and certain physical conditions related to old age have been improved by new uses of the laboratory-made male sex hormone, testosterone propionate, the American College of Physicians was told today.

Dr. J. S. L. Browne, of McGill University, said ten cases of dwarfism related to a deficiency of the pituitary gland had been "treated successfully" with the sex hormone.

The treatment, he said, gave "better results" and was both cheaper and more easily handled than a pituitary gland extract sometimes employed for dwarfism.

He said growths ranging up to one foot had been accomplished among dwarfs who had grown little or not at all for as much as six years prior to treatment. The ten patients, he said, still were growing and the average growth was (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

Germany Repeats Threat To Sink U. S. War Goods

BERLIN, April 25 (AP)—Warnings that United States war materials for Britain will be sent to the bottom of the sea as fast as German military power is able to do so—convoyed or not—were repeated with increasing emphasis in Berlin tonight.

The general attitude was that Germany "will not permit herself to be provoked by intemperate statements of American war agitators," and the Reich, obviously, was trying to avoid any incident which would further strain relations with the United States.

But it was emphasized that Germany has most explicitly laid down an Atlantic warzone which now includes Iceland and extends to the territorial waters of Greenland, and it is stated here that the world long has been on notice that ships in this area taking material to England would be subject to air and naval attack.

The attitude was that Germany long ago established the point that anyone sailing in these waters does so at his own peril and that Germany in no way accepts responsibility for losses to anyone in the war zone.

Commentators all referred to the statement made by Adolf Hitler months ago that any vessel sailing for England—with or without convoy—will be sunk if she comes within range of German torpedo tubes.

Obviously, it was asserted, it is up to the United States whether that country cares to run this risk in carrying out provisions of the Lease-Lend act.

Strike Threat in G.M. Plants Goes To U. S. Mediators

Board Given Task of Preventing Walkout of 160,000 Men

By The Associated Press

The National Defense Mediation Board, already struggling hard to end a soft coal work stoppage which has dealt a blow to industrial production, last night was handed another major task—the job of averting a strike in the plants of General Motors Corporation.

Secretary of Labor Perkins formally certified the threatened General Motors walkout to the board—a step necessary before it can take jurisdiction.

Nazi Panzer Units Lose 23 Tanks And Are Forced Back West of Pass

By J. WES GALLAGHER

ATHENS, April 25 (AP)—German panzer divisions lost twenty-three tanks and retreated after a battle with a New Zealand anti-tank unit near Mount Oeta, directly west of the pass of Thermopylae, reliable sources reported tonight.

The New Zealanders were established behind a swamp near the mountain, and when the Germans tried to cross the soft ground they were met with devastating fire.

Although this was portrayed only as a British rear guard action, the mechanized Nazi forces—apparently engaged in an attempt to encircle difficult Thermopylae—were declared to have fallen back in confusion.

(The German high command says the pass has been taken in an "embracing" action.)

Mount Oeta, 7,080 feet high, is famous as the spot where Hercules died on a great pyre. Its eastern end overhangs Thermopylae.

Nazis Seize Island
In Athens the Greek ministry of home security announced the German seizure of the island of Lemnos, only forty miles from Turkey's vital straits of the Dardanelles, and inferentially acknowledged that nearby Samothrae also had been taken. It said a German attack on Evvoia (Euboea), the big island just off the Greek mainland, had been beaten off.

The Nazi landings on the islands were taken to indicate that the Germans want bases from which to harry shipping.

Undisclosed but heavy casualties occurred yesterday when German bombers sank the steamer Hellas in Piraeus harbor.

British refugee survivors were being cared for by the United States legation, which has taken over duties of the British legation since the Greek government went to Crete.

Today German planes were declared to be ranging far out into the Mediterranean in attacks on everything from big ships to fishing boats.

First Cabinet Meeting
Reports from Crete said the government held its first cabinet meeting today, and a proclamation called on Greeks to remember they are "Greeks first and last" and not to lose hope under the German yoke.

German Losses Reported Heavy as Shock Troops Advance against Small Army

LONDON, April 25 (AP)—British authorities, acknowledging that the situation in Greece was most serious, tonight announced further withdrawal of the British expeditionary forces.

The Imperial army was declared, however, to be inflicting new and severe losses on the German invaders while maintaining an unbroken line in the face of heavy assaults by Nazi shock troops far outnumbering the defense.

Withdrawal Orderly

The middle east command, which announced the withdrawal, described it as orderly. This was supported by British news dispatches from the battle front, which said the British lines remained intact and were still in contact with the Greeks on their left flank despite reinforcements the invaders gained as a result of the Greek surrender in Epirus.

Scene of the present fighting, last placed around Thermopylae, was not mentioned.

The Royal Air Force, also outnumbered but putting up a fight, acknowledged damage to planes on the ground when the Germans bombed a Greek airfield. (The Germans said fifty-five were destroyed on the ground Thursday.)

Embarkation Soon
No British sources would say that embarkation from Greek ports has begun, but the expectation of such an eventuality was not denied, and one informed source predicted that when the time came a good proportion of the expeditionary force would be removed safely.

Size of the British force was not disclosed. (Estimates from other sources have placed it as high as 80,000 men.)

Prime Minister Churchill will broadcast on Sunday, (3 p. m. EST). He is expected to deal with the entire war situation.

An informed source in London declared that in any event the campaign in Greece was an outpost fight in the forthcoming Egyptian conflict.

Apparently in preparation for that conflict, it was announced that Yugoslav troops and planes in undisclosed numbers have arrived in the middle east to continue the fight against the Germans and Italians.

Gene Tunney Soon To Get Decision In Property Case

Judge Takes 'Gentlemen's Estate' Tangle Under Advisement

EASTON, Md., April 25 (AP)—Gene Tunney's fight to defend his purchase of a "gentlemen's estate" on the Maryland Eastern Shore entered its third and final round today as Judge J. Owen Knotts, after hearing arguments of both sides, took the case under advisement.

Tunney, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, and now in active service in the federal training camp recreational program, bought the Bruce Naylor estate, near Bellevue, at an assignee's sale last February for $23,000.

The former owners protested, claiming the price paid was "grossly inadequate."

Bought Through Agent
The property was purchased through his agent, John McKinney, who also bought for him earlier the nearby repajo farms at a reported price of $64,000.

Harry O. Levin, attorney for Mr. and Mrs. Naylor, presented three other reasons why the sale should not be approved:

President Will Extend Area Watched by Fleet To Include Seven Seas

Navy Patrols Will Warn British of Approach of Enemy Submarines and Planes; Move Designed for Protection of Western Hemisphere, President Explains at Press Conference

By J. C. STARK

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP)—A far-flung system of United States naval patrols to scout for "aggressor" warcraft and warn of their presence was disclosed by President Roosevelt today but he rejected at the same time any idea of conveying American supplies to Great Britain.

This patrol, the president emphasized at his press conference, is in no sense a convoy system—it is only an extension on the part of the United States of the "neutrality" naval patrol established by all the American republics in 1939 soon after the outbreak of the European war.

And it is designed for the same purpose, he said—for the protection of the Western Hemisphere.

He compared this vast extension of patrols—extension anywhere on the seven seas where it is considered necessary to protect this hemisphere—with the scout system employed in the old west for the protection of wagon trains.

ROOSEVELT'S COMPARISON
The train had a guard around it but it got its reports from a long way off—it didn't wait until the Indians were in sight but had to know if they were ahead, he explained.

Would the patrol warn other wagon trains, the president was asked.

All kinds of wagon trains, the president replied.

This was interpreted immediately as meaning that the patrols would serve a useful purpose for the British, by warning of the presence of enemy warcraft.

What Else Not Explained
What else an American naval vessel would do if it encountered hostile warcraft was the major question raised by the president's remarks. He said only that it would tell him.

Also unexplained was the extent to which it might help protect British shipping crossing the Atlantic—to carry out the declaration of Secretary of the Navy Knox last night that "we cannot allow our goods to be sunk in the Atlantic" for "we shall be beaten if they do."

The president carefully avoided connecting the extended naval patrol with aid to Britain.

Predicted by Knox
But it was recalled here that Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York, chairman of the joint United States-Canadian Defense Board, hinted at the sweeping character of the patrol in a speech in Canada this week and declared:

"That is our St. George's day message to the people of England," (In Pittsburgh today, Wendell L. Wilkie declared that it was time for the administration to "lead instead of follow public opinion." He called on the government to announce details about the gravity of the British shipping situation and to make public a "plan of protection."

Sen. Byrd Calls For Resignation Of Sec. Perkins

Says She Has Shown Lack of Courage in Mine Stoppage

(By The Associated Press.)
With the aim of getting the mine open by Monday, the Defense Mediation Board dug into the soft coal wage dispute yesterday (Friday) while at the capitol. Senator Byrd (D-Va.) demanded resignation of Secretary Perkins from the cabinet for alleged "fumbling" and "lack of courage" in facing this labor problem.

The Mediation Board's hearings are secret, and there was no word as to what was said at initial conferences of three board members with representatives of the United Mine Workers (CIO) and eight representatives of northern and southern coal mine operators.

Government officials indicated, however, that they had high hopes that at least some of the mines closed since April 1 would resume production the first of next week.

Byrd told the Senate that it was high time that Miss Perkins, the only woman cabinet member, gave way to a two-faced man who will have the intestinal fortitude to say to both labor and capital that strikes in preparedness industries can not be tolerated.

Calls Her "Bottle-Neck"

She has become, he declared, "one of the most serious bottle-necks" in the defense program because of "inability to meet her responsibility in the settlement of strikes."

The Virginia senator had repeatedly demanded certification of the coal dispute to the Defense Mediation Board prior to Miss Perkins' action of this nature early Thursday. In his Senate speech, he said it was reported that she had dropped certification because she "did not desire to offend" John L. Lewis, head of the mine workers. "Is Mr. Lewis the secretary of labor?" he asked.

Byrd urged that the board be given authority to take action in labor disputes without waiting for certification from the Labor department.

In suggesting that Miss Perkins should leave the cabinet, he said he had heard her resignation was on President Roosevelt's desk.

"If it is, the president should accept it," he added. "If it is not, he should request her resignation."

More Industries Close

Meantime, reports continued to pile up of hampered industrial production due to a fuel shortage. The Pittsburgh Steel Company closed the fifth of its ten open hearth furnaces at Monaca, Pa., and the National Tube Company shut down one at Lorain, Ohio.

The Office of Production Management said that steel production would drop to about eighty-five per cent of capacity by the start of next week, and by the week of May 3, would fall to sixty per cent unless coal mining was resumed.

Steel circles in New York said twenty per cent of Carnegie Illinois' input capacity was shut down, and that U. S. Steel would have to close its chief operating unit by mid-May unless it got more coal.

From Baltimore, where the CIO United Automobile Workers called a strike at the Glenn L. Martin Aircraft Company, came reports that operations were little affected. The company is making military planes for the United States and Great Britain.

CIO in Minority

Union spokesmen claimed a CIO membership of 3,200 among the approximately 17,000 employees. The strike was called last night after rejection of demands by twenty-seven men in the drophammer department for ten cents an hour higher wages. The company said the request was made to a foreman rather than submitted to the management.

At Detroit, CIO-UAW officials indicated that a strike in General Motors Corporation's sixty-one plants was imminent. They declared they had no alternative because of "insane bargaining" by the company on demands for a closed shop and higher wages.

The National Association of Die Casting Workers (CIO) announced that it would ask a wage boost of ten cents an hour at five Cleveland plants of the Aluminum Company of America. The company raised wages eight cents an hour earlier this week.

Dr. Fuller Albright, of Boston, also reported on a new use of the sex hormone in improving the condition of old people whose skin becomes thin, muscles become weak and tissues degenerate.

Albright emphasized that the work along this line was very new and still experimental, but said there were indications that the thin skin and weakened muscles of old people had been improved by administration of the hormone.

The Boston doctor said the hormone definitely had proved successful in treating a rather rare condition called "Cushing's syndrome" which also is characterized by thin skin and thin bones. The hormone, he said, tended to conserve the nitrogen content of the body, thus building up tissue that had become weakened by a distur-

A special communique of the ministry of home security described the fall of Lemnos.

The ministry said the "German" commanding officer at Samothrace demanded Lemnos' surrender by midnight Wednesday, but the Lemnos prefect, on advice from Athens, refused.

"As of 5 a. m. (Thursday) the enemy started landing at Port Burina on Lemnos," the communique said, "the German forces having been transported by troopships escorted by aircraft."

"The small infantry and gendarme force on the island put up resistance, the clash continuing beyond 9 a. m."

After the German occupation, the ministry related, the Greek government sent a message to the prefect, praising the heroism of the outnumbered and defeated defenders. Whether they received it was not known.

Lemnos a stopping-place for the legendary Jason and his Argonauts and situated only forty miles from the ancient city of Troy, was an important British base in the World War thrust against Gallipoli. The Turks signed their World War armistice there Oct. 30, 1918.

Lord Halifax explained that Britain knew Hitler was anxious to avoid fighting in the Balkans in order not to break the flow of supplies from that area and that the Allied forces have given up no ground without exacting from the Germans a price in losses, both human and material, on a scale that will not be without effect when they become known at home."

Democratic State Central Group Ratifies Mrs. Byron's Nomination

Will Carry on Program of Late Husband, If She Is Elected

By WILLIAM O. VARN

BALTIMORE, April 25 (P)—Without a murmur of dissent, Mrs. Katharine Edgar Byron, the mother of five sons, officially became the Democratic nominee for the state's Sixth district vacancy in the U. S. House of Representatives and the first woman in Maryland to seek a seat in Congress.

The Democratic State Central committee, actually took less than ten minutes to ratify the action of Sixth district leaders who last Saturday in Hagerstown endorsed Mrs. Byron as their candidate to succeed her husband, Rep. William D. Byron, who lost his life in an airplane crash in Georgia.

Accepts Personally

Graciously, a few minutes after she had been nominated by acclamation, Mrs. Byron accepted personally with a brief statement in which she expressed determination to "carry on the work terminated by my husband's untimely death."

Although she went into no detail concerning the program the late representative had in mind, she called attention to prospective loss of 10,000 wage earners who may be in military training within the year with a resultant "loss of buying power to the district of $150,000 a week or a total of $7,000,000." The earnings assumption, she said, was based on an average wage of $15 weekly.

"At the same time," Mrs. Byron said, "the district must bear its full share of national defense expense. With our favorable geographic position, Bill Byron believed that it would be possible to bring permanent government projects such as airports, health centers and factories, into the district. That would not only replace the temporary loss of buying ability through wage earners in training camps, but would bring a permanent increased prosperity to the five counties of the Sixth congressional district."

Knows Husband's Program

"I feel," Mrs. Byron continued, "the highest tribute to Bill's memory would be the fulfillment of his program for his constituents. Naturally I knew his program and his plans for the future, better than anyone else."

I accept the nomination with full knowledge of the grave responsibilities it imposes. I will need not only your active political support, but your sympathy, your encouragement, and your understanding.

"If elected," she told the state committee, "I pledge my every effort to the fulfillment of my husband's program and to the interest and welfare of our country and of all the people of the Sixth district."

"I shall then more than ever need your advice and guidance. If you will stand by me, I will not fail you."

Mrs. Byron almost certainly will be opposed by A. Charles Stewart, whose endorsement by Republican leaders for the nomination undoubtedly will be ratified here next Tuesday when the Republican State Central committee meets to name the candidate.

Election May 27

Governor O'Connor, who has set the special election for May 27, attended the Democrats' meeting today and pledged his efforts to "do anything and everything I can for your success," he told Mrs. Byron, adding that "I am sure success will be yours May 27."

Edward J. Smith, Frederick County Democratic chairman, placed Mrs. Byron in nomination before the committee and Lacey Shaw of Montgomery county seconded.

William Preston Lane, Jr., of Hagerstown, Maryland Democratic National committeeman and a close personal friend of the late Representative and Mrs. Byron, moved that the nominations be closed.

That carried unanimously when Truman Cash of Westminster, put the motion, and a moment later Cash suggested that Mrs. Byron's nomination should be by acclamation and unanimous. This was carried.

A committee was sent to notify Mrs. Byron, who waited in a room of the Emerson hotel, and she came down to accept.

Mayor Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore congratulated the Sixth district on its choice and declared that "I hope and believe she will be elected. Any contribution I can make toward that end will be a pleasure."

Lane spoke briefly, saying Mrs. Byron's selection "should be a challenge and an inspiration to women voters of the district and state. By their cooperation and effort an opportunity now is offered to elect a woman to Congress from Maryland."

Chats With Leaders

Byron was re-elected last November for a second term which would not have expired until more than a year and a half.

Mrs. Byron chatted with Democratic leaders after the meeting adjourned and announced that she was going home to Williamsport tonight and begin her campaign formally there tomorrow night at a town meeting where Bill (her husband) always began his campaigns.

After that she will have campaign headquarters in the county seats of Montgomery, Frederick, Washington, Allegany, and Garrett—the five counties making up the Sixth district.

Lane said he expected over the week-end to discuss and outline the plans for the effort to elect Mrs. Byron and probably some statement from district leaders might be made early next week.

Mrs. Byron announced her candidacy for the vacancy shortly after her husband's death. For a time it appeared party leaders were determined to choose some other person, leaning toward belief that a man would stand a better chance in the district.

Lane was their choice, but he declined, and last Saturday an effort was made by Frederick county leaders to name Senator John B. Funk of Brunswick. Finally, the Sixth district committee chose Mrs. Byron by an 18-14 vote and Funk in turn pledged his support to her.

President Will

The president said steps were being taken to counteract the occupation he mentioned but he did not say what they were.

President Roosevelt made it clear at the opening of his press conference that he endorsed the words of his cabinet officers who spoke yesterday. Secretary Knox, who declared "this is our fight" and "we must make good our promise to give aid to Britain," and Secretary of State Hull, who said "ways must be found" to insure that the aid reached its destination.

Hull Declines Comment

Today Secretary Hull was asked whether the patrol described by the president was one way to insure delivery of the goods. The secretary of state replied that he could not expand on the words he used last night and added that he had not yet read a report on the president's remarks.

The reaction on Capitol Hill to the president's announcement on the extended patrol and his negative reply to a question on whether the administration had any idea of using convoys was along the usual lines.

For the most part, congressional supporters of the administration's foreign policy voiced approval while criticism came from those quarters which have been demanding non-intervention.

The immediate question that arose from the president's discussion of the sea patrol was whether it was a substitute for the much-debated "convoy" system and how effective it would be in clearing the Atlantic shipping lanes of axis submarines and raiders.

Convoys or Patrols

President Roosevelt drew a sharp difference between convoys and patrols and said that to call a horse a cow does not make it one. But he replied that he had no idea when he was asked whether the patrol was designed to accomplish the same things as convoys but more effectively.

A convoy, he explained, involved the escorting of merchant ships in a group by naval vessels to prevent an act of aggression against that group of merchant ships.

A patrol, he emphasized, is the reconnaissance of certain areas of the ocean to find out whether there is any possible aggressor ship in that area or in the ocean which might be coming to the Western Hemisphere.

Interwoven Stocking Company Strike Ends

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., April 25. (P)—An agreement upon terms for ending a five weeks' strike at the Interwoven Stocking Company, including a wage increase and voluntary checkoff of union dues, was announced today by State Labor Commissioner Charles J. F. Sattler.

The American Federation of Hosiery Workers (CIO) abandoned demands for a protective union shop, vacations with pay, and seniority system changes.

The big hosiery plant which, ordinarily employs about 1,800 persons, has been in limited production since the strike was called March 22. The union originally had demanded a twenty per cent wage increase.

However, the concern granted a five per cent wage raise April 1 and said another five per cent would be forthcoming July 1.

The conferences leading to settlement were started yesterday at the request of Governor M. M. Neely. Negotiations twice before had broken down.

Sattler said the company had accepted the terms and that the union negotiated would recommend approval by the membership at a meeting tonight.

Ward Convicted on Conspiracy Charge

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., April 25. (P)—Herman Ward, 44, of Crisfield, was convicted tonight by a jury in Somerset county circuit court on a charge of conspiracy in abortion in the death of his fiancée, Miss Marie Smith.

Both Ward and Mrs. Addie Wilson, 48, of Crisfield, who had been convicted earlier on charges of manslaughter and abortion, were sentenced to five years imprisonment.

The jury brought in its verdict after deliberating more than three hours.

Ward denied late today that he had arranged to have Mrs. Wilson perform an illegal operation upon Miss Smith.

$80,000 Hidden in Hollow Table Leg

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 25. (P)—Mrs. Lucille Skyrn of Somers Point, who took $80,000 from a hollow table leg, was ordered by Judge Chancellor W. F. Sooy today to return what was left of it to her husband.

Edward F. Skyrn, 74-year-old theater operator, charged his wife took his "life savings" after their separation two years ago. Mrs. Skyrn, 26 years younger, said the money was intended "to support me in my old age."

What Skyrn will recover is problematical. His wife said she buried $60,000 under the back steps of a vacant cottage, whence it disappeared. Three neighbors have been indicted on larceny charges.

And Skyrn must answer questions about the hollow leg hoard before income tax officials next week.

Farm Wages High, Labor in Demand

COLLEGE PARK, Md., April 25. (P)—With the supply of farm labor short and demand high, Maryland farmers on April 1 were paying the highest wages for labor since a comparable period in 1931.

A compilation by the United States Agricultural Marketing Service showed that the ratio of supply and demand was the lowest for any quarter in the past fifteen years of record. Farm labor supply was only seventy per cent of normal.

In practically all sections of the state, the report said, the farm labor situation is becoming acute, although in sections of the mountain region and the lower eastern shore conditions were not as bad as in other parts of the state.

Lindbergh Dumb

earlier in the week on public consciousness of the gravity of the situation, the president said he was reluctant to do so, without giving thought to what he would say.

However, he remarked that there were people who had adopted a curious attitude, and held the idea—which they had not thought through—that there was a new order and a new form of government in the world to which democracy must yield.

Scores "Dumb" Americans

Out of one corner of their mouths they say they do not like dictatorships, the president continued, and out of the other they say that the dictators are going to defeat democracy and that they might as well be accepted. The chief executive added that he did not think that was good Americanism, and that such an attitude was dumb.

He had read an editorial, too, he said, in which it was stated that there had always been conquerors. It mentioned Alexander the great, Caesar, Napoleon, Oliver Cromwell and George Washington, he continued.

Then he deplored any editorial which lumps Washington and Cromwell with Napoleon and Caesar and said he was sorry that people who make such a mistake were in such high places that they could write or talk about it.

Its just dumb, he added.

The attitude that the dictators are going to win anyway, is dumb, too, he continued. He said he was against dictators, that everybody was, and that America was willing to fight for democratic processes, and would not lie down before the Axis powers.

Southern Railway Hit by Coal Strike

WASHINGTON, April 25 (P)—Virginia members of Congress passed today an appeal from the State Corporation Commission for assistance in alleviating a threat of suspension of local passenger service on some lines of the Southern Railway because of a coal shortage.

The commission's telegram said the railway had advised it of the necessity of eliminating passenger service on two of its lines in Virginia and on various other lines throughout the south because of inability to get coal.

"Unless this situation can be speedily remedied," the commission said, "not only will passenger transportation have to stop but freight service will of necessity be curtailed with serious loss to the traveling and shipping public, as well as disruption of mail service."

Gets Job as Dancer, But Army Gets Him

BETHESDA, Md., April 25 (P)—A dancer who worked for ten years to get a chance on Broadway finally got it—and a call from the army at the same time.

The dancer, Weldon O'Toole, 27, stage name Weldon Barr, got a tryout at the Romy theater in New York City. After his act, producers and talent scouts left their cards backstage. Variety, trade paper of the show business, described him as "a dance stylist with a creative feeling that puts him well above the average." It added: "A solo dancer has to be good. Weldon Barr is."

But with the other cards came a notice to report for a year's military training. He got a week's deferment, to establish himself a little further, but had to leave today with eleven other selectees from Bethesda.

The Trend toward State Socialism Continues

EVEN the urgent needs of national defense have failed to curb those New Dealers whose real purpose is to transform our American system of free enterprise into an economy of state socialism. Indeed, the national defense emergency is being used as an excuse for further excursions into the field of socialism and centralized authority.

Testimony that such is the situation in Washington comes from no less an outstanding and veteran newspaper commentator than George Van Slyke of the New York Sun. In a recent article in that newspaper Mr. Van Slyke calls attention to this situation.

"The federal administration has gone far enough now in setting up the national defense program," Van Slyke writes, "to give convincing proof that the fundamental philosophy and purpose of the New Deal socialism as woven into the pattern of democracy for the last eight years is to be carried on intact into the new war area."

"The central purpose is concentration of power in the president by curbing co-ordinated branches of the government. The corollary of that proposition is that the president will not delegate authority and cannot if he is to maintain his theory of the New Deal. The inevitable conclusion is that failure to delegate needed authority to responsible officials and bureaus of his own creation is the essential weakness today of the defense policy."

"There has come to light in the last few days definite evidence that the high command in Washington is cognizant of a gaining public discontent with the present situation. The alarming spread of strikes which are hampering industry x x x; the inability of the OPM to enforce its orders; the utter disregard by the administration of the mounting taxes which threaten bankruptcy; the refusal of the government to make any move toward curtailing waste and eliminating the scores of bureaus which have now become utterly useless—this mass of accumulating evidence is raising the question in the public mind of the competency of this administration to cope with the crisis which the nation faces."

"To the surprise of official Washington and apparently for no good reason, the high-powered New Deal publicity machine has swung into action this week in a national campaign to extol the president and his conduct of the national emergency."

"Using the federal franks of United States senators, masses of literature are being sent out through the mails at enormous expense detailing the achievements of Mr. Roosevelt. The literature is being printed at the United States Government Printing Office. The franks used this week were those of Senator Barkley, majority leader, and Senator Norris, two New Deal agents. The single theme sounded is praise of Mr. Roosevelt. The campaign is being extended by radio and the movies."

"Further, the 300 or more high-salaried publicity agents scattered through the administration have joined in what appears to be a concerted move to carry on the crusade. Why 300 press agents should be necessary at this stage is hard to see. The president is just starting his third term with nearly four years to go. He is in absolute control of every detail of the administration's program of defense. He has a blank check for billions."

"The only possible answer seems to be that the administration chiefs are becoming apprehensive of rising public criticism of its conduct. In other words, the bigwigs in Washington appear to be aware that the public is awakening to the fact that their government is not doing a first-class job, and the New Dealers are resorting to the old propaganda to head off criticism."

Here again we see the great necessity for maintaining, supporting and enhancing whenever possible a sensible, practicable though patriotic opposition in that branch of the government which was designed as one of the necessary checks against executive encroachments and abuses in the scheme of checks and balances laid down in our fundamental law. It is to be seen as all the more imperative in view of the tremendous costs to which the people are being subjected and the dangers that threaten the American way of life.

Yes, a Republican Can Be Elected to Congress

IT IS not without significance that for the first time in twenty-six years, the Buffalo, N. Y., congressional district now has a Republican representative as the result of a special election held a few days since. This is for the reason that the new member, John C. Butler, based his campaign on opposition to the Roosevelt administration in everything except national defense.

It is true that there was a split in the opposing Democratic ranks, there having been a division between the so-called New Dealers and the straight Democratic ticket, and that there was no division of opinion on an issue of great interest to the people of the district, namely, the St. Lawrence seaway extravaganza. While the defeated candidates also opposed this project, Butler insisted that the best way to make Buffalo's protest against it more effective would be by electing a member of the opposition party, and it appears that this argument carried considerable weight, just as it should in the special congressional campaign now being carried on in Western Maryland.

As the New York Herald Tribune points out, the Buffalo district special election was especially interesting because of the indication it furnishes that in spite of the war influence in solidifying the country behind the president, the voters have by no means relinquished their right to protest against policies which they do not like and which they feel are inimical to the defense situation and the national welfare. It shows realization that frank and courageous yet patriotic opposition is as necessary in war emergencies as it is in normal times, if our republican governmental processes are to survive.

What was accomplished in the Buffalo congressional district can be accomplished in the Sixth Maryland district, and it will be unless all signs fail.

Those Best Fitted For Armed Defense

THE GOVERNMENT'S DECISION to go a step farther in considering the qualifications for men admitted to the armed forces is a timely recognition of experience in prior wars. Heretofore the examinations have covered physical and mental fitness only. There has, of course, been consideration of the recruit's vocational qualifications. Now the plan is to go into what may be called spiritual qualifications.

In all wars since humane attention has been given to the care of the wounded and otherwise disabled, it has been observed that certain men are unequal to the demands of military training and the severities of regimentation, and that men of good physical and mental equipment have proved to lack the spiritual attributes necessary to coolness and efficiency in the face of danger.

To call these men malingerers or cowards was once an easy way out of the problem for the good reason that the real cause of their trouble was not understood. Psychiatrists have now let in the light, and defense leaders, eager to escape the cost of training and trying to use spiritually unfit men, have welcomed the new classification plan. They point out that the care of disabled men after a war, including those suffering from shell shock, or shattered personalities, costs about $32,000 each.

Here is a situation in which humane considerations and the development of battle-power work to the same end—the placing of defense men where they will do the most good for defense.

A Nuisance That Is Still With Us

THE ANNUAL NUISANCE of daylight saving in spots will become effective in various cities throughout the country and on the radio stations at midnight tonight when the clocks will be turned forward an hour, while in other communities the time schedule will remain the same.

This is, indeed, a bothersome and confusing thing that ought not to be tolerated longer. Either we should have daylight saving as a whole or we should keep the clocks on standard time. Congress has a measure pending that would make daylight saving generally effective; and reports have come from Washington that, in lieu of its passage, the president will proclaim daylight saving as part of the national emergency.

At this writing neither action had been taken for the probable reason that both Congress and the president were eyeing the farmer vote. Anyway, people in communities where the clocks are left untouched who want to shove their day forward can do so by the simple expedient of starting to work an hour earlier and quitting an hour earlier than heretofore.

It is interesting to learn that Indiana university's new cyclotron will be used to disintegrate the atom's nucleus, but the student body doubtless would like to know how effectively it may be utilized against Purdue's backfield.

A man I know frequently rages against the tyranny of dishwashing in the home. He says: "We ought to use paper cups and plates and burn them after each meal." I say: "What about the pots and pans and silverware? They must be washed, and as long as a woman must wash them, she doesn't object to doing the dishes and glasses, too." . . . He scowls at me then and says I MAY be right. . . . In a few weeks we have the same discussion all over again.

A few months ago I bought a double-breasted suit—and it's the last one of that cut I'll ever buy. . . . From my point of view my objection is sound. When I sit at the dinner table I like to tuck my napkin in my coat. When I do that with my new double-breasted napkin is way over on my right thigh. I like it in the middle. . . . and don't laugh.

Most of the hitchhikers I overtake on the highway have such a solemn look, even the youngsters as though they didn't actually expect to be picked up. . . . Even if they don't feel like they ought to grin when they thumb, I'll bet it would work. It would on me.

I try to be fair about it, but when an acquaintance is abusive to me after he has had a few drinks, I can't forget it when he's sober again. I've heard of men who were two entirely different persons—when they're drunk when they're not. . . . But I never knew any such person.

Americans Need Sane Leadership, Gen. Johnson Says

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, April 25—"Business as usual" in this production emergency is, of course, absurd. The phrase is heard, however, is not among businessmen. It is used as a kind of reproach by some officials and some commentators who seem to think that the way to get production is to kick the lights out of the production machine. As to the officials, they are frequently those who didn't themselves wake up to the emergency in time, who have not yet been able to endow the effort with inspiration, and who think that the way belatedly to get the lights out of the production machine, is to jump up and down and holler.

Some in this school of so-called thought are actually now saying that the only way to get this country awakened to "all-out" effort is to push it all the way into "all-out" war and "let a little American blood spill." That is the way to create "all-out" hysteria, but "all-out" hysteria never yet created "all-out" production. It was exactly that argument that pushed France, all unready, into war—and so ruined her.

Generalship Lacking

It is becoming increasingly clear as the facts about the European 1940 spring campaign are coming to light that it wasn't any inertia of the French people that resulted in their fall. It was the most God-awful lack of generalship and staff work in the history of wars. There just weren't any sufficient and competent French troops at the line of the German advance, although the French had such troops in abundance.

The current custom of turning up noses at great defensive works like the Maginot line and using that example as a reason for turning up noses at great natural barriers like the Atlantic ocean is the same kind of error. The Germans didn't despise defensive works like the Maginot line. They built their own Siegfried line or Westwall. The trouble wasn't with the Maginot line as far as it went. Like a bridge built halfway across a river is just built halfway across. Its whole left flank was exposed, and the French relied on other nations like Belgium and Holland to cover that flank and do that part of their fighting for them. The fault so far as any concrete evidence shows wasn't in the French army or the French people. It was in French leadership and staffwork.

People Not Lazing

Something of the same sort may explain some of the shouting and glee-hawing at the American people that is coming out of Washington today. There isn't and hasn't been anything the matter with the American people. If anything they have forged ahead of their leadership. They certainly have not lagged behind.

They asked to be taxed before government began seriously to consider war taxes. It was popular demand for peace-time conscription, before any official demand of leadership, that wrote the Selective Service law. There has not been a dollar of the astronomical war appropriations that has not had almost universal popular support.

As to American industry and business itself, if there has been a single solitary case of lagging, much less of obstruction, I have yet to hear of it. This popular situation needs no whip lash. That need has been elsewhere.

Against Shooting War

If this shouting for "all-out" something-or-other means that most of the people don't want to get into bloody war unnecessarily, or to defend the far-flung parts of the British empire and the shouters are "all-out" for that, it is true that a great majority still don't favor our entry into shooting war. But they were told by leadership on both sides of the political argument that

THAT "MAKE IT EASY TO TAKE" CONFERENCE

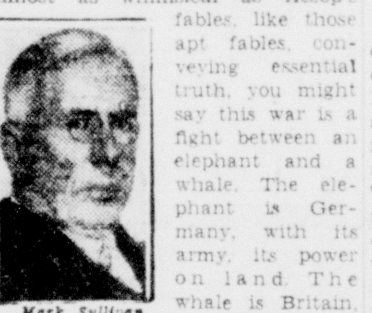

Fate of Britain Is Seen As Hanging Upon an Adequate Supply of Planes

By MARK SULLIVAN

WASHINGTON, April 25—If you are willing to see this war in terms almost as whimsical as Aesop's fables, like those apt fables conveying essential truth, you might say this war is a fight between an elephant and a whale. The elephant is Germany, with its army, its power on land. The whale is Britain, with its power on the sea.

The Dangerous Cigarette Stub

From the Fairmont, W. Va., Times

A wiseman said, "Tell me what you eat and I will tell you what you are." He might also have said, "Tell me what you do with your cigarette stubs and I will tell you what kind of a citizen you are."

If you are driving a car and smoking, do you throw your stub out of the window? If so, you aren't a good citizen. Your stub may land in some leaves or rubbish by the roadside and start a fire. The place for such stubs is the ash tray provided in your car.

When you are smoking in the house and you leave your stub in an ashtray, do you make sure it is actually out before you leave it? Women are said to be the worst offenders in this respect. Cigarette stubs smolder on the edge of an ashtray, and sometimes drop off. This is how many house fires begin.

When you drop your stub in any public place, do you step on it? Hard? You should. It might set fire to the clothing of some passer-by. The best plan is never to drop your stub on any floor at any time, but use the receptacles provided for smokers.

Good citizenship is simply intelligent consideration for your fellow men. According to the National Board of Fire Underwriters, now celebrating its seventy-fifth anniversary, one test of a good citizen is whether he puts cigarette stubs only in a safe place and, even then, makes sure they are completely extinguished.

Cooling but No Freezing

From the Cincinnati Times-Star

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, attacked the Vinson bill because it would freeze present labor organizations and require a twenty-five-day "cooling off" period before a strike could be called.

In his opposition to freezing labor at its present status, Mr. Green is on firm ground. It is true, as Representative Vinson points out, that most strikes have been due not to demands for higher wages or shorter hours but to organization drives or jurisdictional wars. Vinson is right, too, in asking that labor make sacrifices to defense along with all other groups in the nation. But Vinson's remedy shows an excess of zeal. To forbid further organization would require repeal of the Wagner act. We do not think there is a chance that Congress would adopt it. In fact, there would be no strong demand for it if the "cooling-off" clause were adopted.

Mr. Green argues against this clause on the ground that the right

Planes Give Answer

When and if the British, with aid from America, produce more airplanes than Germany, or better quality than Germany, or with better pilots than the Germans—at that time Britain can win the war.

It is not necessary, of course, that the winner have all three of the attributes of superiority—more planes, better planes, and better pilots. But it must have enough of these attributes of superiority as a whole, to have dominance in the air.

In that suggested pattern for British victory, two important words are the smallest, "when" and "if." Those words introduce the factor of time. The British, to win, must achieve air superiority soon enough.

At present, as everybody knows, it is Germany that has dominance in the air. Because she has dominance in the air, she is winning the war. Germany is winning the war, not in the Balkans, not in North Africa, and not in any other of the battles on the outer perimeter of the

Decisive Air Block

The arena in which conclusive decisions will take place is a section of the atmosphere above the earth. It is so to speak, a block of air, about a thousand miles long, some five hundred wide, and in thickness anywhere from 100 feet to two miles. The arena consists of the air over the docks and harbors on the shores of England and over a stretch of water leading up to them. In this area, Germany is destroying so much of her harbor and dock facilities, that England is in danger of being strangled—in danger of being deprived of necessary food, necessary war supplies, and necessary capacity to support, with outgoing ships, her battle fronts in North Africa, the Mediterranean and elsewhere.

It is German planes, mainly, that are doing this destruction. The submarine is a relatively secondary factor and, if it were alone, could be overcome as surely as it was in the Great War. And so far as submarines are a factor, much of their effectiveness comes from help by planes, which from the air spot ships and transmit the location to the submarine. It is German planes that are destroying the English docks, ruining British harbors, sinking ships in the waters that lead up to them.

Though that answer is in terms of fantasy, it coincides with much austere military judgement. An opinion held by competent authority may be put thus:

Could Take Offensive

"When and if"—portentous words—Britain has enough planes to resist the German ones. England can protect her lifelines, make her island secure indefinitely. And after Britain has enough planes for that defensive purpose, she can do more—she can take the offensive and win the war. The dominance in planes that will make her own island safe, should be enough to carry the war into Germany.

If Britain's "expectancy of survival" as life insurance puts it, is only four months, it is doubtful whether, within so short a period, America can give her sufficient planes to enable her to have dominance. But if Britain can last ten months, which is the estimate of more optimistic judges, the quantity of planes reaching her from America should be very large. Ten months from now would be about March 1, 1942. That, or a little later, is the time when American mass production of all kinds of war material should be approaching top speed—that is, if we work hard enough; if we are sufficiently aware of the need, sufficiently alarmed.

Lesson for United States

It is being said that time works on the side of the British. But time does no such thing. To say that time is on one side or the other is one of the ways by which men in anxiety fatuously delude themselves. Time does not work on anybody's side. Time does not have any favorites. Time, as poor Reynaud said when France fell—time is a neutral, which works in favor of whichever side makes use of her. About 1933, when Hitler was coming into power, there was the same amount of time available for Germany and Britain.

Germany at once took hold of time, and made use of it. Britain and France did not, until it was late. In this lies a lesson for the United States today. The coming four to ten months of time will work in favor of Britain and the United States only if they energetically make use of it.

Coast Guard Does Splendid Service On Iceberg Patrol

By EDWIN C. HILL

It is just twenty-nine years ago this month that the Titanic, then the biggest, swiftest and most luxurious ship in the world, struck an iceberg and sank with a loss of 1,517 lives. Two years later, the International Ice Patrol was formed, with thirteen nations participating, the United States policing the sea lanes but with the other nations sharing the expense.

A little sputtering, straggling wireless sent kicked out a warning of icebergs to the oncoming Titanic. Whether the message was received was never quite cleared up by the investigation. Certainly it was not heeded. And quite as certainly it would be heeded today.

Four times a day or more if necessary the coast guard cutters on their spring and summer rounds send out by radio the exact location of all icebergs, large and small, and details of their size and drift. The patrol possibly has saved many times the number of lives lost on the Titanic.

Seeks Plane Co-operation

News from Washington now is that the coast guard is asking the co-operation of the new transatlantic clipper planes in the exchange of weather data. The planes, in turn, will maintain a hawk-eyed watch for the prowling bergs. It is all in the full flower of the radio miracle. Ships, planes and shore stations can gossip at will, as if they were all in a fire-side chat.

Year by year, various branches of the government use the iceberg patrol in various research, with meteorology tremendously aided, under the direction of the Hydrographic Office. Not long ago Coast Guard vessels started releasing balloons with radio apparatus. Some of them rise to a height of seven miles, to a temperature of sixty-three degrees, tilting weather secrets from the skies which could be obtained in no other way.

The condensed argot of the weather wizards enables them to transmit to ships and planes a steady flow of accurate intelligence of winds, temperature, visibility and, above all of the murderous bergs. And weather lore from above is relayed by the cutters to the transatlantic ships, with the Coast Guard vessels an alert liaison between ships and planes and the never-sleeping friends of both.

Are Shepherded Safely

Not long ago there came down to Boston a riot call from the Grand Banks. Two huge white killers were loose on the sea lanes. Within a few hours the Cutter Chelan was on the way up there, to watch and warn, to be followed a few days later by the Champlain. Other ships have since gone on patrol, and the swift liners are being shepherded safely through the "graveyard of the Atlantic" as they used to call it.

Most of the great icebergs are "calved" on the west coast of Greenland, as a glacier hunches and crunches its way slowly down to the edge of the ice cap and finally breaks away. It takes the runaway about a year to get down to the traffic highways. In its glacial progress, before breaking away, it has picked up a few million tons of snow, solidified to the equivalent of ice by terrific pressure. So a big iceberg is apt to be more snow than ice. As it gets into the Gulf Stream, the snow melts first, and the berg may be a glittering blue and white flag of a towering beauty in the bright sunlight.

Strange Acrobatics

As they hit the warmer regions, the icebergs do some strange acrobatics. This "tumbling" is due to the upper mass melting first, finally bringing as many as four somersaults in twenty minutes as the center of the gravity shifts. And these submerged remnants are dangerous. With the complete effectiveness of the patrol, the sky-scraper bergs, sometimes 200 feet high, are easy to locate and guard against. The berg which is just about on its last legs is the real killer.

You can take your hat off to this noble organization whose men throw themselves continuously to battle against the elements. And because every soul of them is briskly and everlastingly ready, their achievements, as brilliant as human effort knows, have become tradition.

One of British Ambulances Will Stop Here Soon

Cross-country Tour Being Made by Vehicle Named "Thumbs Up"

An ambulance of the British-American Ambulance Corps will reach Cumberland, Tuesday, April 23, on a cross-country tour in a campaign for war relief funds.

Mayor Harry Irvine will greet the ambulance and party on behalf of Cumberland. The vehicle is known as "Thumbs Up" and will later be sent to either England or an Allied front.

Chief purpose of the "Thumbs Up" is to raise funds to purchase flying ambulances to save valuable lives of R.A.F. pilots shot down in the North Sea and other surrounding waters in the onrush of battle of the Atlantic.

Since the ambulance started its long trek, the ambulance corps has purchased two amphibian airplane ambulances, capable of landing at sea, to rescue downed pilots. These mercy planes will be shipped to a special London committee appointed by Lord Beaverbrook.

The ambulance comes to Cumberland from Winchester, Va., and will proceed to Hagerstown on its way to New York docks for shipment.

At the wheel of the ambulance will be Frank Maxwell, who gave up a Wall Street career to help rush ambulances and other supplies to Britain and her Allies.

Maxwell was a customer's man in Wall Street before joining the ambulance corps as a driver. He attended Woodstock College in Canada, where he was a track and football star.

Judge Sloan

functioning of the club and the officers all testified that as far as they knew the club did not operate after hours. The court said that he had received several complaints about the club.

The court took under advisement granting of these three licenses and those of a score of clubs in and about Cumberland. Evidence concerning these establishments will be given later it was indicated.

Application for a beer license at the newly organized South End Social Club was taken under advisement and Judge Sloan said the club was the club start out with good intentions but wind up as a public sore spot.

Council for the applicant said this was no "fly-by-night club." "That's just the trouble," Judge Sloan remarked, "the members fly in and stay all night."

Warns Against Slot Machines
Representatives of fraternal organizations applying for their licenses were told by the court that compliance with the terms of their licenses was expected and that licenses carried no permission to operate "slot machines."

Due to the increase in population six new whiskey licenses will be granted by the court. Many applications have been made for the few licenses available. They will not be granted for several days and not more than three, if that many, would be made to applicants in Cumberland, the court said.

One man applying for a whiskey license said his place of business was on the site of an "old familiar" hostelry in Cumberland. Judge Sloan commented that upon that basis the number of licenses would have to be more than tripled, as back in the old days when Cumberland had only half as many people there were 200 saloons in the city—twenty-three alone on Baltimore street between the two railroad crossings.

Judge Sloan said that it was the duty of Cumberland policemen to go into places where alcoholic beverages were sold under the interpretation of the court's duty in regulating the liquor traffic although he said, this is in direct variance with a city ordinance which prohibits city policemen entering such places except when a call was put in for their appearance.

Salica Retains Bantamweight Boxing Crown
BALTIMORE, April 25 (AP)—Lou Salica, staging a garrison finish in the stretch after he had been outboxed in the earlier rounds, came back to win an unanimous decision over Baltimore's Lew Transparenti and retain his bantamweight title here tonight.

Transparenti fought a courageous battle all the way, but weakened toward the end and barely weathered a terrific flurry of rights and lefts as the champion rallied in the fifteenth and final stanza.

The 22-year-old Baltimorean was groggy at the closing bell and all but out on his feet. It took just that for Salica, who gets tough when the chips are down, to hold on to the crown he almost lost in earlier rounds.

Peskin and Lazarus File Answers To Suit Brought Here Wednesday

Assert Distraint Sale Was Held in a Fair and Just Manner

Lawrence Peskin, proprietor of the Family Shoe Store, his wife, Freda Peskin, and Aaron Lazarus, owner of the building in which the store operates, filed individual answers to the suit brought Wednesday by trustees of the estate of Samuel Eisenberger asking that a receiver be appointed for the store.

The suit contends that Peskin is indebted to the Eisenbergs for $400 a month from July 1940, representing rent on the Baltimore store formerly occupied by the Family Shoe store on a long-term lease.

After several judgments were given against Peskin an execution was issued by the circuit court on the first judgment for $400 and on April 16 the sheriff levied on the goods, wares and fixtures of the store in premises on Baltimore street owned by Lazarus.

Distraint Takes Precedence
But the Eisenbergs were notified that a distraint had been levied April 8 against the property for rent allegedly due Lazarus, which would take precedence over the Eisenberger execution.

The suit charged that the Eisenbergs "have reason to believe" and charge that "the distraint is illegal and of no effect and that the sale (held to satisfy the distraint) was conducted in such a manner by the collusion of all the defendants that all of the property located on the premises was alleged to have been sold to Freda Peskin for the sum of $866."

This sale, the petition charged, "was a deliberate effort" on the part of the Peskins to "defraud" the Eisenbergs.

Through their attorney, Frederick A. Puderbaugh, the Peskins and Lazarus deny all allegations of collusion and "deftly" resent the unfounded allegations of the orators.

Acted in Good Faith

Lawrence Peskin asserts in his answer that the store has been incorporated since August 2, 1940 and that the distraint sale was held in accordance with the laws of the state of Maryland and that Freda Peskin purchased the physical assets of the "Family Shoe Store, Inc." in good faith and that she now has a full and good title to the assets, as against any and all persons.

Lazarus denies any knowledge of the various claims against the Peskins but says the distraint sale was held in a fair and just manner under the laws of the state of Maryland and he sees no reason why he has been made a defendant in the suit.

The Early Church Meeting Human Needs
HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON
By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for April 27 is Acts 4:32-40, the Golden Text being Acts 4:32, "And the multitude of them that believed were of one heart and soul.")

THE SPIRIT of the early church was a fine and lovely thing. All the members loved one another, and shared what they had with one another. No one spoke of his own possessions, but "they had all things in common." None of the followers were in need, for those that owned property sold it and gave to the more needy brothers according to their needs.

As is usual with imperfect men, however, there were those among them who cheated and lied. Such were Ananias and his wife, Sapphira. They too sold their possessions, but instead of laying the proceeds at the feet of the apostles as the others had done, they kept back some of it. When Ananias was questioned by Peter as to whether he had given all, he said he had, but Peter knew he lied, and said, "Ananias, why hath Satan filled thine heart to lie to the Holy Ghost and to keep back part of the price of the land?"

A great fear fell on Ananias when he heard this question, and he fell down at the apostles' feet and died, and was carried out by four young men and buried. Three hours later Sapphira, not knowing what had happened to her husband came in and Peter asked her about the money. If that was all they received, she too said it was, and Peter accused her of conspiring with her husband to cheat them. At that she fell down at his feet and died, as her husband had, and the same young men carried her out and buried her beside her husband.

Many Are Healed
Multitudes of men and women joined the band of believers on the Lord Jesus Christ, and they brought their sick, those afflicted in body and mind, to be healed by the apostles. If they could not reach the apostles, they tried to lay these afflicted so that Peter's shadow would fall upon them, thinking that even his shadow would heal them.

"Then the high priest rose up, and all they that were with him (which is the sect of the Sadducees), and were filled with indignation, and laid hands on the apostles, and put them in the common prison. But the angel of the Lord by night opened the prison doors and brought them forth."

You can imagine the consternation of the high priests when their guards announced that although the prison was still locked, the apostles had gone, and were distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Church Meeting Human Needs

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Acts 4:32-7:60

The believers shared everything, no one holding property for himself. Those who had houses or lands, sold them and laid the money at the feet of the apostles for the use of all.

A man named Ananias and his wife, Sapphira, however, sold a possession, and lied about the money they got for it, and were stricken dead. Ananias first, then Sapphira.

The apostles preached and healed and converted many, so the Sadducees arrested them and threw them into prison; but the angel of the Lord set them free, telling them to go on preaching.

Sunday Dinner Hints Are Given

When planning your Sunday menus it is a good idea to remember that you can provide a gala touch by making use of the more colorful fruits and vegetables. For instance, a fruit cup made of strawberries, oranges, grapefruit and a few sprigs of mint or two or three green cherries is as tempting to look at as it is delicious to eat. Stuffed tomatoes in a bed of lettuce or parsley are another appetizing treat.

Attractively priced fruits and vegetables over the week-end will be apples, pineapples, oranges, lemons, bananas, asparagus, beets, broccoli, carrots, lettuce, mushrooms, peas, potatoes and tomatoes.

The following Sunday dinner menus, prepared by Marion House Budd, director of the A. & P. kitchens, are planned for three different budgets:

Low Cost Dinner
Cream of Carrot Soup	Swiss Steak
Baked Potatoes	Orange Salad
Bread and Butter	Gingerbread and Coffee
Medium Cost Dinner
Stuffed Tomatoes	Veal Pie
Pickled Beef Salad	Hot Muffins
Pineapple Whip with Cookies
Very Special Dinner
Beef Soup	Celery Curls
French Lamb Chops	Broiled Mushrooms

Winter Dishes Can Be Retained

Layer cup cakes, with walnuts for flavor and eye appeal.

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
 AP Feature Service Writer

The arrival of spring doesn't mean that favorite winter dishes should be tossed out altogether. Remodeling will give them spring-time appeal.

Here are a few ways to revamp some of the old favorites—

Add asparagus and carrots to a savory sauce and cover reheated slices of roast, meat or fish cakes, or browned hash.

Fortify a tossed green salad with hard-cooked eggs and cottage cheese. Let it pinch-hit for meat or fish.

Combine cubed cooked meat or fish with vegetable salad, side with hot creamed soup or chowder, top off with shortcake or custard dessert, and you have an ample, interesting dinner menu.

Spread fresh butter or sponge cake with French pastry frosting and cover with fresh or canned strawberries or rhubarb sauce.

SARATOGA MOLD brings meat loaf up-to-date. This tasty main dish, filled with vitamins, is easy to make. Simmer for 3 minutes; 2 tablespoons each of chopped onions, celery and green pepper in 2 tablespoons of fat, preferably bacon. Add 1-2 cup milk and a beef bouillon cube. Cook slowly until blended. Add 2 cups chopped cooked beef, 1-2 cups boiled rice, 1-4 cup catsup, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 egg or 2 yolks and 1-4 teaspoon pepper. Pour

Walnut Layer Cup Cakes
 Two cups sifted flour, 2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 eggs, 2-3 cup milk.

into a buttered ring mold. Bake 45 minutes in a moderate oven (350). During the last 15 minutes of cooking baste several times with 2 tablespoons of catsup, mixed into 1-4 cup of boiling water and 2 tablespoons butter. Unmold the loaf and serve warm or cold. Tomato mushroom sauce blends if served hot. Mayonnaise, seasoned with chopped

Here Is Another Dollar Stretcher

There's only one main difficulty with cup cakes of the golden color and vanilla flavor—they disappear too fast and must be kept hidden if one expects to have any left to serve at supper as a complement to stewed rhubarb, fruit, berries, or with a sauce, such as chocolate.

CUP CAKES
 4 tablespoons shortening, 1/2 cup sugar, 1 egg, unbeaten; 1 cup sifted flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup evaporated milk, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla.

Cream shortening and sugar together. Add egg and beat mixture well. Add mixed and sifted dry ingredients alternately with the combined milk and vanilla. Divide batter into the twelve cups of an oiled muffin tin. Have the gas oven preheated to 400 degrees and bake the cakes for twenty minutes.

For variety and an entirely different flavor in cup cakes, try using a recipe for a light gingerbread, but be sure to omit the spices.

Sandwich Spread

When you have nuggets of ham that refuse to slice, pop them into sandwich fixings like this: grind the cooked ham, and to one cup of it add a little vinegar, one tablespoon peanut butter, and some chopped celery. Spread between slices of buttered bread.

Meat Loaf Hint

Plain meat loaf is vastly improved by "red skin" potatoes. Make them like this: Place white potatoes around meat loaf and bake frequently with chili sauce mixed with equal parts water.

Canada, attempting to supply Britain with materials which formerly came from Europe, expects to double its flax average in 1941.

WIFE PRESERVERS

When oysters and clams are bought in the shell, see that shells are firmly held together, as this shows that the shellfish are alive.

SOME MORE USEFUL CULINARY HINTS

Boil potatoes gently and they will be so much better.

Glassware taken on the highest polish if dried directly from hot, clean suds without being rinsed.

Don't keep honey in the refrigerator. It keeps better in the cupboard.

Over-burned dishes can be cleaned by soaking them in a solution of borax and water.

Stuffed Rolls

Stuffed hard rolls are something new to spring on family or guests. Remove centers and spread inside with melted butter. Toast and fill with creamed tuna or other fish. Mix some of the crumbs with melted butter and sprinkle on the tuna. Bake fifteen minutes in a moderate oven.

Pillsbury's BEST XXXX Flour

for every purse . . . in your everyday baked foods

★ FLOUR—even the finest flour—is one of the lowest-cost foods known to man. Now this wonderful low-cost energy food, Pillsbury's Best Flour, contains precious added vitamins and iron—food elements you need, not just once in a while, but every day. Now, from the flour that has been the favorite of good cooks for nearly three quarters of a century, you get more than just the finest baking you've ever done. You get added iron and vitamins which your body needs to make proper use of energy foods (carbohydrates). This is essential to sound nerves, good appetite, better growth in children, the ability to carry on through days of hard physical work!

At last, here are needed vitamins within the means of every family!

Remember, good-baking flour, like Pillsbury's Best, is still the same good-baking flour after it has been enriched—but inferior flour, even if it is enriched, is still inferior flour. And remember something else—enrichment itself must be done carefully, so that each bag will be uniformly enriched. The same strict training standards which make Pillsbury's Best a "baking" flour also make it a uniformly enriched flour!

Pillsbury answers your questions about this new enrichment of white flour

• You understand that modern science has perfected a way to add precious food elements to your "daily bread." But just what is being added? What does it mean to you? Here, briefly, are the answers to those natural questions of yours:

1. Vitamin B₁ (thiamine) is added—helps the body make the proper use of energy foods (carbohydrates), which are essential to: (a) Proper growth in children, (b) Good appetite for both young and old, (c) Sound nerves, (d) Ability to thrive on hard physical work.

2. Iron is added—helps build red blood.

3. Vitamin P-P is added—another member of the Vitamin B complex, which also overcomes certain deficiencies in the diet.

• Every pound of Pillsbury's Best is now enriched with these three food essentials.

★ It's the same fine, dependable PILLSBURY'S BEST—now enriched! ★ NO CHANGE IN FLAVOR ★ NO CHANGE IN APPEARANCE ★ NO CHANGE IN BAKING QUALITIES

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

THE FOLLOWING afternoon they were on the beach, the entire island population of 12. The major and Mrs. Edmonds sat beside Tom and Betsy, who were resting after a swim. Natalie and Brooks were swimming with the skill and ease of those long accustomed to salt water, while Lucy and Orwin were paddling in the shallow water close at hand. Bill lay half asleep, a disreputable looking hat tilted across his nose.

Terry, in a yellow latex bathing suit that consisted of shorts and a bra, was picking up seashells, padding happily along the beach, her hands already filled so that when she found a new treasure she had to throw away one of those she already had. Absorbed in her pursuits, she rounded the beach and was out of sight of the others.

It was Bill who missed her when she had been gone 10 or 15 minutes. He sat up and asked for her; the others hadn't seen her since she had vanished around a curve in the beach. Nobody was at all concerned, but Bill heaved himself to his feet, yawned prodigiously, and casually he thought he'd go see what had become of her.

And it was then that she came in sight at the upper end of the beach. There was something odd about the way she walked—stumbling a little, her hands outstretched like one suddenly blinded who feels his way amid chaos. The very sight of her struck terror to Bill's heart, and he raced to meet her.

The others were on their feet now, and close behind Bill when Terry stumbled into his arms. A Terry who was deathly white behind her sunburn, whose eyes were sick with horror, and whose young body shook with a violent chill. Her voice was a mumbling, incoherent babble of sounds. Bill shook her hard, holding her a little away from him as she tried to crowd her shaking body into his arms as though for the sheer creature comfort of his physical warmth and nearness.

"I—stepped on him, Bill," she said at last. "And he—he's dead. There's—there's a hole right between his eyes. And he's lying there, all still and—and—sort of peaceful looking—"

"Oh, my God," said Bill under his breath. His arms tightened, and she began to cry in great, gulping sobs that shook her body and tortured her throat as they tore their way upward.

Tom had raced for a stimulant. Bill held the glass to Terry's lips and her teeth rattled against the rim of it as she tried to swallow. After a moment, she said shakily, "He's there—just around the curve in the beach—up a little creek. I thought maybe there might be orchids—I'm a fool about orchids!—and then I stepped right on his face—"

Bill lifted her in his arms and carried her swiftly toward their cottage, while Betsy followed him, anxious to do what she could.

Tom said crisply, "Major, if you'll be kind enough to stay here with the ladies—"

"I'd rather go along, if you don't mind," said the major in a military manner. "Perhaps Mr. Littlefield wouldn't mind staying here?"

"No, of course not. Anything at all that I can do—"

Along this bank, walking warily lest they come unexpectedly on one of the poisonous snakes or alligators known to infest such spots, the group of men advanced. Suddenly Tom stopped so abruptly that the others trod on his heels.

He stood looking down at the man who lay there. A man who must have been in his early thirties, dark, swarthy, clad like a seaman, his dark face upturned sightlessly to the sun. And as neatly as though it had been bored by some auger, there was a small round hole between the man's eyes.

Despite the cheapness of his clothes, there was something almost majestic in the man's position, so still, so quiet, his arms neatly folded across his breast. The major polished his glasses and then bent low above him.

"We mustn't touch him, of course, until the police arrive," stated the major, breaking the silence that held them all.

"The police?" Brooks was plainly startled.

"But of course," said the major instantly. "It's obviously a question for the police to solve. Who is he? What's he doing here? And—most important of all—who put him here?"

Tom nodded. "One of us will have to stay on guard, I suppose," he said quietly, "while we send for the police—"

"I'll stay," said Donald. "Looks like this might make a swell story for my paper, even if I am on vacation."

Brooks scowled and Donald did not miss the change in his expression.

"Right!" said Tom briskly. "I don't need to warn you, Heath, about being careful of disturbing any clues."

"Thanks for not doing it, anyway," said Donald, and grinned cheerfully.

The others were thankful to make their escape from the spot that seemed strangely sinister and evil, because of that still body with that beautifully precise small hole between its eyes.

Back on the beach the women were waiting in a little uneasy huddle, and one look at the faces of the men who came toward them answered their queries. Mrs. Edmonds gave a little shriek and wavered toward the major, her hands outstretched in a dramatic plea for reassurance.

The major, for once, did not leap gallantly to his cue. Instead, he said sternly, "Pull yourself together, Gladys. This is not the time for hysterics, my dear."

Mrs. Edmonds looked startled, but she made no more hysterical threats.

"What is it, darling?" asked Natalie swiftly of Brooks.

"The man is dead," said Brooks, quickly. "It's obviously murder—and of course, Forman's calling the police."

ruffled in the least. She moved with mouse-like quietness and her voice was always very soft and low. The youngster reflected her poise.

Both parents revealed ideal patience with him, sympathy for him and understanding of him. He talked freely but not too much.

Each afternoon, by the clock, he went off for his nap without more objection than the sun to rising in the morning. The mother regularly took a nap when he did.

Breakfast and lunch the mother prepared and served with the father's help.

The youngster ate what was set before him and seemed to enjoy it thoroughly.

Each evening the mother went with us, leaving the lad with a young woman. This the child accepted as a matter of course and there never were good-bye scenes.

One evening the child asked to have the scissors and was met with "No" in a quiet matter-of-fact tone. Tears were welling up when the mother suggested a story and he listened rapidly and contentedly.

Later the mother explained to me that the child that day had clipped some fur from a rug and was told he could not have the scissors for three days.

The management of this child struck me as an extraordinary achievement by a pastor's wife in a paragon where many parishioners drop in and the problems of bringing up a child is peculiarly difficult.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. You often urge parents to cultivate self-reliance in the child. Please suggest some early steps to this end.

A. Let the youngster feed himself as early as possible, and take care of himself in other ways. Let him make choices and decisions for himself which are safe and reasonable. Let him answer the questions meant for him and carry on his own end of conversations with guests without interruption by you.

Q. Suppose your child reminded you that you had made some breach of etiquette for which you often had rebuked him.

A. I should feel obliged to apologize penitently to the child and ask him to remind me again if he should catch me in the same offense. Best results might follow, if I were to let him collect a nickel every time he caught me.

Child Training Is Appreciated By Home Visitors

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Judging from the letters I receive and the thousands of parents I meet, I have concluded that there are many skillful, wise and worthy parents.

Let me tell you of two families who within the last year have invited me to sit as guest in their family circle.

A farm on the edge of a village. Two children, one at home, the other in college. When I arrived the boy was presented. He and I enjoyed a visit and our conversation was not interrupted by his parents. The school superintendent, his wife and I were the guests. This fourteen-year-old boy helped his mother serve the tasty attractive meal, and how gracefully he served. After dinner we leisurely retired to the adjoining room and the whistling lad did the dishes.

Later we guests and the parents left the home for my lecture in the village. The boy remained at home and did his lessons.

Tentative List Of Graduates Is Made Public

Garrett County High Schools Will Award Diplomas to 197

OAKLAND, April 25 — One hundred ninety-seven seniors of the six high schools of Garrett county will be graduated in June, providing those named in the tentative lists complete their work between now and the end of the term, according to P. E. Rathbun, county superintendent.

This is a sharp drop from the high figure of 230 last year and still under the figure of 214 for the previous year. Other schools include Friendsville, twelve; Grantsville, thirty-nine; Accident, twenty; Kempton, seven; and Kitzmiller, twenty-one. All except Accident, showed a decrease while that school's tentative list is the same as a year ago.

The girls outnumber boys as usual, this year 101 to ninety-six. In three schools they are even, six each in Friendsville, forty-nine each in Oakland, and ten each in Accident. Kitzmiller boys outnumber girls eleven to ten, while Grantsville girls outnumber boys twenty-two to seventeen, and Kempton girls outnumber boys four to three.

Commencement exercises for Oakland, Kitzmiller and Friendsville will be on Wednesday, June 11; for Accident and Kempton on June 12; and for Grantsville on June 13.

Powers, chairman of the finance committee in charge of raising funds for the Moose convention to be held in Frostburg, July 18, 19 and 20, states that his committee, consisting of nineteen members of Frostburg Lodge, No. 348, this city, has set $1,200, as the amount needed to defray the expenses of the convention.

The committee has planned a number of card parties, dances and an advertising program for the purpose of raising money which will be used to pay the general expenses of the convention and to award attractive cash prizes for the ritualistic contest, attendance and for the best organizations and floats in the street parade to be held in connection with the convention.

Besides, the anglers have until July 9 to catch them.

J. W. Hesen, Jr., commission fish technician, asserted this year's sport should be "better than any in the last several years."

The only slight variance in the picture was a report that Grant county streams are low because the rains there were lighter than in other districts.

However, rains permitted opening

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 25 — Manufacturing industry continues to function in West Virginia despite the mine holiday, an expert said today, while from union headquarters came an assertion all emergency orders were receiving prompt attention.

"We have granted permits for delivery of coal to private homes, hospitals, schools, churches, laundries and numerous other establishments," declared Creel Urbanik, United Mine Workers representative in charge of District 31 at Fairmont.

As for District 17 in the Southern fields, Representative Charles Payne said that Charleston headquarters had received "only two or three" emergency requests for coal since the shutdown began April 1.

Both Urbanik and Payne asserted that all such orders were filled promptly from union mines.

When the miners quit their pits after failure to negotiate a new agreement to replace the two-year contract which expired March 31, great piles of coal were visible on the yards of many major plants in the Wheeling industrial area.

This bill has been signed by the governor and the bill carries a referendum with it.

To Plant Peas

All contracting for the planting of 600 acres of peas has been completed by the Southern Packing Company, new owners of the Loch Lynn canning plant. It was announced today by Joseph Welch, company representative. The seed is now ready for distribution and farmers are expected to plant their peas next week.

Negotiations are still under way with farmers for the balance of the corn crop for this year. The company plans to have 500 acres of corn planted, but planting of this crop will not be made by farmers before about May 10.

Pay Taxes Early

The offer of four per cent discount, made possible by a recent enactment of the legislature, upon payment of state and county taxes in March and April, has brought in approximately $7,000 in tax money to the office of Jesse J. Ashby, Jr., county treasurer, he announced. This includes a payment of about $33,000 from the Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric Corporation.

The balance of the amount has been received from various taxpayers.

During May and June the discount is three per cent, and January and February, 5 per cent, but the legislature did not enact the law.

600 Girls Try for "Ziegfeld" Roles

Exactly the same system which Florence Ziegfeld and his stage director, Ned Wayburn, used for the selection of their Folies beauties was followed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in choosing the showgirls for "Ziegfeld Girl," now showing at the Maryland theater.

Ziegfeld believed that a pretty face was the first requisite, then an attractive figure. Next he required a girl to be able to dance, or at least to be able to carry herself gracefully. Applicants were lined up backstage and advanced one at a time across the stage in time to dance music. They walked to the far side, returned, came downstage to the footlights, walked to the backdrop and were measured for height, then exited.

Whereas nearly all the applicants for showgirl jobs in "Ziegfeld Girl" were bathing suits, with one or two in playsuits of evening dresses, Ziegfeld's original glorified girls appeared at auditions in light-colored cotton bloomers, long stockings, or lights, smocks or jumpers with low necks and short sleeves, and high-heeled slippers. Yet even in that get-up, Ziggy could pick 'em!

Jean Arthur Stars In Film Fantasy Riot

Working conditions motivate the tongue-in-cheek plot of "The Devil and Miss Jones," Jean Arthur starring today at the Liberty theater.

The actress is cast as "Miss Jones," conscientious saleslady in a huge department store, while veteran actor Charles Coburn portrays a barking, dyspeptic old roger, reputed to be the richest man in the world and unwitting owner of the giant emporium.

Combining warm, human drama with its sparkling comedy, the story concerns the efforts of the wealthy tycoon to investigate conditions in his establishment by impersonating a shoe clerk. His association and reluctant friendship with the pretty saleslady, his gradual regeneration and his ultimate activities when he actually helps carry the torch of battle against his own unjust management, make for delightful entertainment.

Robert Cummings has the romantic lead opposite the star, while Edmund Gwenn, Spring Byington and S. Z. Sakall have other featured roles. Sam Wood of "Kitty Foyle" fame directed this production with its gay adventures taking place in many famous spots in and around New York city, and including a hectic Sunday afternoon at Coney island.

Bracken Comes Back After 'Retiring' as Kid

Eddie Bracken, who is in his early twenties, is on the comeback trail as a movie star in Hollywood.

At ten he was a Hollywood wash-out. He was too old. Eddie you see, was one of the "Our Gang" kid comedians. Like so many of the child stars, Eddie slipped back into obscurity, as far as Hollywood was concerned.

But not long after his enforced retirement from film acting, Eddie got his first Broadway stage role as understudy to Junior Durkin in "The Lottery." He was only thirteen then. After a series of ups and downs after that first Broadway appearance, Eddie clicked in a big way, and then Hollywood came after him. Now Eddie has one of the most important roles in the new Paramount comedy, "Reaching for the Sun," opening today at the Strand theater, which stars Joel McCrea and Ellen Drew. This comedy is the third picture Eddie has appeared in since he began making his film comeback. The first two were "The Aldrich Family" in "Life With Henry" and "Too Many Girls."

Among the stage comedies Eddie has appeared in are "Brother Rat," "What A Life" and "Too Many Girls."

Ozark Star Explains Secret of Success

Lots of folks are born down to Springfield, Missouri, every year. They're all "just folks," even as the Weaver Brothers and Elvira, who star in the Republic picture, "Friendly Neighbors," scheduled to open tomorrow at the Embassy theater.

What is it, then, that has made the Weavers the toast of the entertainment world for merely enacting in public the roles of the real home folks who were their Ozark friends and neighbors?

June "Elvira" Weaver crystallizes it succinctly when she says, "We reckoned that the things people like best were the things they knew best."

Far from being the illiterate hillbilly she portrays on the screen, Mrs. Weaver is a charming woman of culture and education. She is particularly indignant when "outlanders" assume that all residents of the Ozark region are barefoot illiterates.

She designs the backwoods costumes she wears in her pictures—outlandish affairs adapted from the styles of a generation ago—but insists that the typical present-day hillbilly is garbed in cheap but more or less up-to-the-minute clothes from the mail order houses.

Human Stampede Shown in Film

The discovery of diamonds in South Africa and the great rush to the diggings which followed form the historical background for Universal's "Diamond Frontier" which stars Victor McLaglen now at the Garden theater.

The period is 1867-1875, which covers the first finding in the hands of children of a South African diamond, and the unearthing, in 1899, of the 83-carat "Star of South Africa" which sold for 25,000 pounds. This event precipitated the frenzied rush to the Orange and Fasil river districts and the unearthing of deposits in 1871 in the Dutoitspan region which later developed into the great Kimberly workings.

Supporting McLaglen will be seen a cast which includes John Loder, Anne Nagel, Philip Dorn, Cecil Kellaway, J. Anthony Hughes, Francis

Radio Stars With Strand Show
Coming Next Wednesday and Thursday

Miss Lee, of STAR and LEE, is strictly the Kate Smith type, with a warm personality, a beautiful voice, and bubbling over with good humor. BARNEY STAR, her partner, is short of stature but long on the accordion and very quick on the comedy trigger. This contrast makes for a most entertaining comedy duo much in demand for Revues, Radio, etc. A song to them becomes merely a piece of putty, to be molded into a piece of unusual entertainment, punctuated here and there with their own brand of comedy. Don't miss this great comedy team in "RED HOT AND LOVELY," the sensational stage revue coming to the Strand next Wednesday and Thursday. Among other great features on this show, you will see NINA and her pal "Hank the Mule" of musical comedy fame; TID, THREE ROSS SISTERS, the world's finest sister trio; THE PERRY TWINS, Duke of Windsor's favorite comedy dancing stars; the 12 ZIEGFELD GIRLS, glorifying the American Girl; MILT HENKIN, Tommy Tucker's former arranger and pianist now out on his own and doing a fine job. All of these features and many more you will see among the 35 stars with "RED HOT AND LOVELY," coming on the stage of the Strand Wednesday and Thursday. DON'T MISS this fine production.

Fort Hill, LaSalle Drop Diamond Clashes

Beall's Tossers Defeat Sentinels By 4 to 1 Margin

Blair Twirls Two-Hit Ball, Fans 16 for Frostburg Outfit

The Fort Hill Sentinels, lacking power at the plate, absorbed a 4-1 defeat at the hands of Beall's latins, west Blair to the mound and the opening Tri-State Interscholastic Baseball Conference clash for both teams yesterday afternoon on the Fort Hill field.

Ray Middleton, who had charge of the Beall team due to the recent death of Coach Eddie Finzel's latins, sent Blair to the mound and the Frostburg twirler responded with a two-hit, sixteen-strikeout performance.

Sentinels Score in Sixth
Raphael Oyle, third sacker, and Joe Reed, first baseman, drove out singles for Fort Hill's only hits. The Sentinels pushed over their only run in the sixth frame.

Beall got to Cecil Grimes, who went the route for Fort Hill, for its four counters in the fifth frame. On the whole, it was the Sentinels' best game of the year but Coach "Bobby" Cavanaugh is still far from satisfied with his boys' hitting power.

Leatherman, Beall first sacker, sparked the winners' attack with a double and triple while Lawrence Middleton, Frostburg outfielder, had a triple for the only other extra-base knock. Ritchie also had two bingles for the visiting club.

At Massanutten Today
This morning at 9 o'clock, Coach Cavanaugh and his Sentinels will leave for Woodstock, Va., and a tussle at 2:30 with Massanutten Military Academy. Other games slated in the district today are West Virginia School for the Deaf at Staunton, Va. and the Frostburg State College Mountaineers and St. Vincent at Latrobe, Pa. The boxscore:

Highbe Shuts Out Bees for Dodgers

BROOKLYN, April 25 (AP)—Spark-ed by a four-hit pitching effort for the third straight day, the Dodgers blanked the Boston Bees 5 to 0 today with Kirby Higbe, the "fugitive" from the Phillies, doing the hurling.

Higbe fanned seven and was never in serious trouble as he turned in his first victory in a Brooklyn uniform.

The Dodgers' seven-hit attack was paced by Dolph Camilli, who clouted his fifth homer of the season, his fourth in five days. The boxscore:

THIS AND THAT IN THE SPORTS WORLD

Four of the eight games played in the major leagues yesterday were decided in the ninth inning

In the American League, Detroit nosed out the St. Louis Browns 12-11 by scoring twice in the ninth and the Cleveland Indians stopped the Chicago White Sox 5-3 with a three-run spurt in the ninth.

In the National, the New York Giants waited until the ninth to score five times and whip the Philadelphia Phillies 7-4 and the Chicago Cubs pushed over four tallies in the final frame to nose out the Pirates 8-7.

The Western Maryland and Eastern West Virginia Association of Approved Basketball Coaches will hold a clinic for coaches and players on May 5 at 8 o'clock at the South Potomac junior high school, Hagerstown.

Pat Kennedy, who officiates in New York's Madison Square Garden, and Ben Greene will conduct the clinic. Kennedy is scheduled to stress technique and deal with all phases of the present game, while Greene plans to discuss play situations and give inside coaching pointers. A dinner will precede the clinic.

The South Branch Golf Club organized Monday night at the Hotel McNeill at Moorefield, W. Va., with representatives of the Petersburg Kiwanis Club, the Moorefield Moose lodge and the Moorefield Lions Club as sponsors of the new club. H. Gus Munzing was named president of the group, Ralph P. Welton vice-president, Thomas J. Hawse secretary and R. E. Fisher treasurer.

The course will be constructed on the Phil Inskip land now under lease by the town of Moorefield at the proposed airport. Club officials pointed out that the golf course could be so constructed so as not to interfere with the operation of planes and that the maintenance of the runways for planes and fairways for the golf course could be divided by the two groups.

The opening day has been set for May 30. Sand greens will be constructed.

Committees appointed by Munzing were Judge H. M. Calhoun, by-laws and organization; W. D. Grafton, engineering and construction; Ernest Thrush, finance, and Hugh Beap, membership.

Ida Simmons, undisputed queen of women duckpinists, who gave an exhibition at the Roney during the winter, was married on Easter Monday to Darrell Slack of Norfolk, Va. her home town. Ida will make her title bid next Saturday. At one time or another, she has held every national championship.

Detroit Captures Slugfest, 12 to 11

Tigers Outlast St. Louis Browns in Weird Three-hour Struggle

DETROIT, April 25 (AP)—The champion Detroit Tigers and the St. Louis Browns indulged in a typical grocers' picnic ball game today with the Tigers finally coming out on top in a weird three-hour struggle, 12 to 11, with their third straight victory.

Broad-beamed Rudy York put an end to the wacky business with a bases-full single in the ninth for two runs after the Browns had gone ahead in their half.

The teams did about everything except play good baseball. There were 24 bases on balls, 14 off the Browns' hurlers, and eight errors, not to mention numerous mental misuses. The box score:

Hipsley To Direct Sentinels in Absence of Captain Hook

A dozen boys, accompanied by Coach Johnny Long, will go to Woodstock, Va., today to officially open Fort Hill high school's 1941 track and field campaign in a dual meet with Massanutten Military Academy athletes.

It will be the first meeting of Sentinel and Massanutten track squads in Fort Hill history. A meet was scheduled last spring but cancelled on account of rain.

In the absence of Captain Gene Hook, who went to Cornell University as the guest of Coach Carl Navey, the Scarlet and White athletes will be directed by Harold Hipsley. The squad will leave at 7 o'clock this morning. The meet will get under way at 10:15.

Hipsley To Run Century Making the trip will be Harold Hipsley, Walter Fleishour, Paul Divico, Joe Montelone, Charles Kiter, Richard Schultz, Charles Fisher, Clarence Minnick, John Rowan, Paul Rodecap, Carl Lapp and Francis Brinker.

According to Coach Long, the practice meet with Romney and Ridgeley high schools this week had a lot to do with the Scarlet and White entry list for the program of eleven events.

Hipsley and Fleishour will run the century and also the 220 while Divico and Montelone will represent the Sentinels in the 440. In the half-mile, it will be Kiter and Schultz while in the mile, Kiter, Fisher and Minnick will be the Scarlet and White standard bearers.

College Park Next Week Fisher and Minnick will hold up Fort Hill's end in the pole vault. Rowan and Rodecap have been entered in the high jump. Lapp will enter the discus. Fisher, Lapp and Minnick will hurl the javelin. Lapp and Brinker will heave the shot and the broad jump will find Hipsley and Montelone opposing the Massanutten leapers.

Next Saturday, the Hilltoppers will go to College Park to compete in the division of the University of Maryland meet closed to county schools.

Petersburg was charged with five errors with miscues and walks figuring in the scoring of all Capon Bridge runs. Gus Turley started on the hill for Petersburg and was charged with the defeat. The box score:

16 Horses Named For Jumping Classic

GLYNDON, Md., April 25 (AP).—Sixteen of America's top steeplechase horses, headed by Mrs. Stuart S. Janney, Jr.'s highly favored Vaunt, were named today for the forty-eighth annual running of the colorful Maryland hunt cup tomorrow.

Hunt cup officials, who predicted a crowd of some 20,000 persons, visioned the race, over four miles of fox hunt country on the J. W. V. Martin estate, as a battle between the fast-traveling Vaunt and the field.

Two weeks ago Stuart S. Janney rode Vaunt to a record-smashing victory in the My Lady's Manor point-to-point, inaugural of Maryland's steeplechase season. He followed this up on the same day by taking his own Winton over the course to capture the John Rush Street memorial.

Commercial Loop Trophies Awarded At Annual Banquet

Leo "Chick" Leasure Re-elected President for Fifth Term

The Commercial Bowling League, believed to be the oldest in Cumberland district duckpin circles, closed its eleventh annual campaign with members of the champion Eiler Chevrolet crew receiving individual trophies at a banquet held at Minke's Cottage Inn.

The trophies went to Captain Harry Smith, Albert "Red" Clites, Oscar Leasure, Leonard Rising, Emory Robertson and Theodore "Neb" George, who defeated Times-News pinmen, defending champs, in the five-game rollout encounter.

Sammy DeLuca, Moxie ace, received the league's top trophy, an electric clock donated by The Times-News, for topping the loop with an average of 159. Bill Lee, of Times-News, received the Eiler Chevrolet high game trophy with a 252 score, while Ed Johnson, of United Accessories, was awarded the Rosenbaum's trophy for rolling the highest set of 577.

Leo "Chick" Leasure, president of the league for the last four years, didn't "choose to run" but his appeals for other nominations failed and he was unanimously elected for a fifth term. Frank Hausman, secretary-treasurer, was also re-elected.

Loop History Reviewed

All of the trophy winners made brief responses after receiving their awards from Gene Gunning, sports editor of The Times. Leasure, serving as toastmaster, also called on the following spokesmen: Elmer Welsh, Rosenbaum's; Hayes Robertson, Moxie; Ted Hausman, United Accessories; Mark Dereman, Monarch Printing; and Eddie Yates, Times-News. Short talks were also made by Melvin Valentine, who leaves this week for Army service; Thomas Hubbs, Thomas Brailer, Elwood Foltz and Secretary-Treasurer Hausman.

Leasure, during the course of the evening, reviewed the history of the league from 1933-34 when German Brewing Company pinmen defeated The Times outfit for the title to the present season.

Recalling high scores and averages of each campaign, Leasure pointed out the circuit numbered twenty-four teams at one time with divisions rolling on two nights each week. Footers Dye Works defeated The Times to take the championship in 1934-35. The Times topped Footers in 1935-36. German Brewing turned back Maryland Glass the following year. Monarch Printing won over Potomac Edison in 1937-38. The Times topped Railway Express in 1938-39 and also turned back Railway Express in title rolling last year.

Present for Valentine It was announced that "Private" Valentine will receive a going-away present from the league. The matter of raising the "kitty" to provide for title trophy awards each year, was deferred to the start of the next season.

Those present were Harry Smith, Oscar Leasure, Sammy DeLuca, Albert Clites, Leonard Rising, Emory Robertson, Theodore George, Bill Lee, Eddie Yates, Tom Brailer, Thomas Hubbs, David Scollick, Elmer Welsh, Elwood Foltz, Clarence Broadstock, Richard Collins, Hayes Robertson, George Mickey, Mark Dereman, Louis Aldridge, Basil McGrover, Leo Leasure, Frank Hausman, Melvin Valentine, Gene Gunning, Edward Johnson, Theodore Hausman, Edward Belfoure and Gerald Leasure.

Records Shattered In Drake Carnival

Records shattered in the Drake Carnival, which closed today with a 3-2-1 victory for the Drake relay team.

Texans Crack Sprint Medley Mark--Blois Ups Discus Standard

DES MOINES, Ia., April 25 (AP).—A crack quartet of fliers from the University of Texas—a pair of red heads and a pair of blonds—raced to a new American sprint medley record on this balmy spring day in the opening of the thirty-second Drake relay carnival, which also resulted in the smashing of six Drake records and the tying of another.

The speedsters from the Lone Star state dug their spikes into the cinders in assignments of 440-220-220 and 880 yards to cover the distance in 3:22, clipping eight tenths of a second off the American record.

Indians' Rally in Ninth Frame Nips White Sox 5 to 3

Cleveland Victory Nullifies Protest Made in Fourth Inning

CHICAGO, April 25 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians scored three runs after two were out in the ninth inning today to defeat the Chicago White Sox 5 to 3, and nullify a protest they had made on a play in the fourth inning.

Protest Made in Fourth Inning

Manager Roger Peckinpaugh said he was playing the game under protest when Ray Mack was called out on a fly ball to Julius Solters. Sox left fielder Solters caught the ball, but dropped it in what appeared to be an attempt to throw Ted Lyons going into the ninth.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear father and husband, Mr. J. Young, who died 7 years ago, April 25, 1935.

We often sit and think of you, And speak of how you died, To think you could not say "goodbye" before you passed your life, For everyone you did your best, Oh, God grant you eternal rest.

Group Inspects N.Y.A. Projects, Commends Work

Disagree with Charges Made in Baltimore after Touring County

That the National Youth Administration is doing commendable work in Allegany county is the consensus of opinion expressed by a group of county and city officials, who, yesterday made a tour of the various projects in operation in different points of the county.

The group heartily disagreed with charges that the NYA is responsible for a labor shortage in national defense work here and that hundreds of able-bodied youngsters, especially in Western Maryland counties, were drawing spending money on NYA projects when there is a shortage of trainees for aircraft skills. Such charges were made Thursday by John K. Seidel, assistant state director of vocational education, and Mrs. Marie Bauernschmidt, Baltimore, executive secretary of the Public School Association.

Call Charges Fallacy
Returning home last evening after inspecting the new $10,000 NYA building on Paca street; the county home, where NYA workers are building stone walls; Frostburg, where improvements are being made at the baseball park and swimming pool area; the site of the new Frostburg NYA building; the machine and carpenter shop in Lonaconing; the community center in Lonaconing and the sewing project on Cumberland street, the group was enthusiastic in its praise of the NYA and admitted that it is convinced that charges directed at the Western Maryland administration are a fallacy.

The party comprising Mayor D. Clarkston Laird, of Lonaconing; Simeon W. Green, president of the board of Allegany county commissioners; James Stevenson, clerk to the board; William Lemmert, city councilman of Frostburg; Fred Z. Hetzel, manager of the office of the Maryland State Employment Service office here; E. Price Steidling, of Lonaconing, assistant area director, and William J. Edwards, commissioner of water and light, Cumberland, made their inspection tour in automobiles, leaving here at 1 p. m., and returning to Cumberland at 7:30 p. m. Laird, Green and Hetzel are members of the Allegany county NYA advisory committee.

Meet NYA Officials
At Lonaconing, the group conferred with national and state officers of NYA, namely, William Cline, Washington, D. C., national director of shop projects; Harry W. Zellman, state supervisor of shops, and Raymond Tewart, area supervisor of shops.

Members of the county visiting delegation were served supper at the girls' project in Lonaconing. The meal was prepared and served by the NYA girls.

Much interest was taken by the visitors in the work being turned out by NYA boys and girls in the (Continued on Page 7, Col. 1)

Harrison To Receive Medal for Heroic Act

Youth Who Rescued Child from River Is Cited for Carnegie Award

HERO REWARDED—G. William Harrison, 19, of 330 Aviret avenue, who rescued four-year-old Francis Keifer, from the Potomac river, January 7, yesterday was cited for a bronze medal for heroism by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission, of Pittsburgh.

Harrison is among seven men who are cited for awards for risking their lives to save others.

The commission now has made 3,207 awards out of 39,508 cases considered, of which 125 are pending. It is supporting 203 widows, eighty-one children, four other dependents and six injured heroes.

When four-year-old Francis Keifer slipped and tumbled through the ice at 4:15 p. m., here January 7, Harrison, a deliveryman for Diehl's grocery, dived head first into the river and fished out the youngster. It required three quarters of an hour for police to revive the boy with a pulmotor. Harrison was making deliveries in a grocery truck when the accident occurred.

The hero is a graduate of Allegany high school, class of 1939.

Awarded Legion Medal
On March 14, Fort Cumberland Squadron No. 13, Sons of the American Legion, presented Harrison with the "National Legion Medal for Outstanding Heroism" at a special ceremony attended by a hundred persons at the Legion home, Harrison street.

The medal which bore the inscription "Award for Outstanding Heroism" on the front, and "Presented to Bill Harrison by Squadron 13, S.A.L., 1941" on the back, was pinned on the young hero by Lieut. Col. Henry C. Stanwood, state director of Selective Service, who was guest of the Legion on the special occasion.

Suggested by Editor
The mayor and city council on January 14 passed a resolution commending Harrison for his courage and that his heroism in saving the life of Keifer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Keifer, 321 Aviret avenue, be referred to the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission in Pittsburgh.

On the motion of Thomas F. Conlon, commissioner of finance, a committee of four, comprising Mayor Irvine and the editors of the Cumberland Evening Times, the Cumberland News and the Cumberland Guide was named to fill out the proper form to be forwarded to the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission. The council took action on the matter at the suggestion of Paul Martin-Dillon, associate editor of the Cumberland Evening and Sunday Times.

Special Service for Intercession Of British Nations To Be Held

Rowe Shelley, Mr. William Oswald, organist of the Church, will be at the console. The British flag, and the flag of the United States, will be displayed on standards at the Chancel steps.

Special invitations to attend the service have been sent to all patriotic organizations in Cumberland, and to several other organizations. In addition, the rector has personally invited all ministers in Cumberland and vicinity to be present with as many of their church members as possible.

Commenting on the services the Rev. Mr. Clark said, "It is fitting in this hour of crisis that the prayers of all religious people, in particular of all Christian people, be offered to Almighty God in behalf of the British cause. The British people are fighting to subdue an unprecedented uprising of the forces of evil. They need more than ships, and planes, and munitions of war. They need our prayers."

Special Music Arranged
The offering will be for the relief of the local chapter of "Bundles for Britain," and will be used for the work in the London hospitals.

Emmanuel choir, under the direction of Prof. Maurice Matteson, choirmaster, will sing, "Hark, Hark My Soul," a composition by Harry

Over 200 similar services have been held in Episcopal churches in this country the past winter, and all have drawn large congregations due to the sympathy felt by Americans for the British people. The service in Emmanuel church, like a majority of the other services mentioned, will be characterized by special prayers for their Majesties, the King and Queen of England, and for the British armed forces.

Special Music Arranged
The offering will be for the relief of the local chapter of "Bundles for Britain," and will be used for the work in the London hospitals.

New York Man Is Held as Evader Of Draft Law

George W. Kelly, 30, Arrested by Sgt. Charles Magaha

George William Kelly, 30, who gave six different New York City addresses, was arrested yesterday by Sgt. Charles Magaha, state police, on a charge of failing to register for the draft.

Kelly was picked up at the local Salvation Army home on a routine check by Sgt. Magaha who was on the lookout for seven escaped prisoners from the Huttonsville, W. Va. penal farm.

Did Not Register
The fact that he had not registered for the draft was brought out during questioning.

Kelly was arraigned before United States Commissioner James Alfred Aviret and given a preliminary hearing. After a telephone consultation with Bernard Flynn, United States District Attorney, Baltimore, it was decided to hold Kelly until his story and fingerprints are checked.

In the event he is not wanted on some criminal charge Kelly will be given the opportunity to register at one of the local draft boards. He will be immediately given a physical examination and if passed will be sent to an induction station at once.

Prefers the Navy
Kelly exhibited a keen intellect during the questioning on certain subjects such as streets and buildings around New York and to a fair degree on sports subjects, but he fell way short when he replied to a question by Aviret about how many home runs Babe Ruth would hit this year. "I guess he'll get about fifty or sixty," Kelly declared.

He said he did not think the draft was very important at the time of registration but he indicated he has changed his mind since being arrested.

Kelly also said he preferred the navy if he is sent for a year's military training.
